In a speech at Hamilton, Ohio, Mr. Jas. A. McMasters, editor of the Freeman's Journal, of New York, made the following state-

It say, then, I charged it in print, and I here charge it by word of mouth, and am ready to anbatantiate it by intercepted communication from the Southern Confederacy to the world, that Mr. Linealn's Administration was made that Mr. Line all's Administration was made acquainted with the fact one mouth before he came, that Alexander II. Stephens was about to visit Washington with power to treat for peace. They had that information by intercepted correspondence, and the man to whom it was addressed was imprisoned for receiving it. It is, or was, in the State Department, unleaston was sent. And therefore I am free to that Stephens was reported to have turned that Stephens was to come to dealth the great powers of the Administration at Washington, that he was about to come, and was only arranging the terms with Jeff. Davis on which, on the highest patriot ic and American grounds, he was to come to Washington, and make propositions that would overwhelm the North with astorishment. His plea was this: That they had come to the lowest point; that now or never they must make riceds with the North—make up their quarrel, or the American Violence and their doors calculate a stephens with the North—make up their quarrel, or the American Violence and the country, the power and passwords, to save them from these terrible enemics—the Pope and bits oreigners. We were told, too, that we (here in the South) were clouded a delice—the foreigners. We were told, too, that we (here in the South) were clouded that we (here in the South) were clouded to that we (here in the South) were clouded to that we (here in the South) were clouded to the power. Pretty sort of a Government we had and have now; divided sgainst itself, containing an irrepressible conflict, ex rel, or the Amer can Ution was gone forever, for France was at their doors, claiming a close alliance, offensive and defeusive, with the Southern Confederace. Mr. Stephens, we know, was a gallant, truly patriotic and Union man, and as true and American, and as worthy of the name freeman as draw the breath of man, and as true au American, and as worthy of the name freeman as draws the breth or life on this continent. Ilis pl-a was: We can not die and leave cur names to posterity as the destroyers of this Union. We must smother cur passions, we must put down our projudices, forget our wongs and woes; we must make up this quarrel, for this American Union must be preserved. And with that high, patriotic idea, overwhelming Jeff. Davis with the oblequy with which history would stamp his tame if he resisted, he came with all power to t.ea. at Washington for the cestal on of this war, ou the ground of a reason hal on of this war, on the ground of a reason able, sincere and firm purpose to reconstruc-

The New York Herald is responsible for the last ancedote of Mr. Lincoln. It seems that the next Presidency is the prime discussion now at Washington among the officials; and all other aspirants except Mr. Chase havag dropped out of the field, and he being very active as Secretary of the Treasury, the President accounts for it. The Herald says : risk the chance of its being exposed that he was imposed upon. The President assumed that he was mittaken, and treated his suggestion accordingly. English writers call a suspension of the writ of habeas corpus a suspension of the liberties of England. It has only been enspended twice in a hundred years or more-once in 1794, and again in 1817. MIXING POLITICS WITH RELIGION.-We pul ished on Friday the letter of Mr. John K. ester, of this city, to the editor of the Bor-on Trumpet and Freeman, an organ of the Universalists, in which was exhibited some of the Universalists, in which was exhibited some of the cvil consequences of Christian ministers meddling with politics. The consequences to the country were chiefly dwelt upon by Mr. Lester. He might have written another and a very interesting chapter, devoted to the consequences to the church.

There is scarcely a church in New England. it we except the Episcopal, which has not suffered, and suffered severely, as a direct censequence of meddling with politics. If the editor of the Trumpet and Freeman, who has gone to his elbows in this meddling, will ook at his own church, he will perceive that this remark is at least to some extent true. We have before us at this moment an abstract of an official report on the condition of Universalist societies in Maine, which presents some startling facis. State Fair-Third Day.

The weather yesterday was very unpropltious for the State Fair. It commenced rainng in the morning and coutinued with but this fact the attendance was not as large as it would otherwise have been; yet there could not have been less than five thousand persons present, all of whom highly enjoyed themselves. The immense amphicheater is so aranged that, even with a beating rain, all ould keep dry. By the exertions of the mangers the grounds are kept in perfect order. The Fair yesterday was decidedly the best of the week. The entries for the different premiums offered were large and the competition was very lively. In some rings there were over a dezen entries and so close was the competition that the judges were hardly able to place the ribbons. The noble animals were the finest we have ever seen, and we heard some good judges remark that they were equal, if not superior, to those exhibited at any previous Fair.

The directors of the State Fair have used every effort in their power to make this one of the finest and largest exhibitions ever held on the grounds, and when we take everything into consideration, we think they have not
